"The law programme I have chosen to follow has been instrumental in getting me in this seat"

The unique nature of the LL.B. (Hons) which includes civil law, common law, Mauritian law along with international and comparative law has been immensely beneficial and opened up a lot of possibilities for me. The quality of the classes and professors of Université Paris II Panthéon-Assas who are mostly international, have provided me with insightful knowledge and trained me to be a versatile professional. Today, as I use methods and approaches to tackle data protection and privacy policies in line with my organisation's strategy, I know the law programme I have chosen to follow has been instrumental in getting me in this seat within the legal department.

"An intense journey and a rewarding experience in my career"

It was an intense journey and a rewarding experience in my career. I am pleased to have graduated top of the class and humbled to have been conferred the award for being the record-holder of all LL.M programmes of Panthéon-Assas across all years and countries so far. This would not have been possible without the benefits of the rich interactions of my class and the lecturing staff. The programme combines distinctive theoretical subjects and practical case studies, all delivered by top-notch lecturers, themselves internationally recognised authorities in their respective fields. All of these combined, give us the tools to sharpen our professional thinking.
