

Summer course in Artificial Intelligence

Exploring the impact of AI from a legal and economic perspective

Monday 7th July 2025 to Tuesday 15th July 2025

Location: Assas campus, Singapore

Dates are indicated in Singapore Time (GMT+8)

As artificial intelligence (AI) gains momentum, understanding the challenges and opportunities created by AI is crucial. Numerous questions arise regarding the use of AI, which can be seen as an object of regulation by lawyers, but also as a useful tool for law enforcement. Notwithstanding the advances involved in AI, its use also raises moral and ethical issues, in addition to legal issues.

COURSE DESCRIPTION

This interdisciplinary course offers a dual approach to artificial intelligence through the eyes of an economist and a lawyer.

Different questions will be addressed, such as:

- The impact of AI on the labor market, from a macroeconomic and microeconomic perspective.
- How AI can help legal professionals.
- The development of predictive justice.
- AI applications to predict law violation, judge's decisions, law enforcement decisions.
- Bias and ethics of AI applications to the law.
- The numerous roles of AI in various sectors within society and their legal implications.

The objective of this course is to give an overview of the many interesting intersections between AI, economics and the law. This is an emerging, multidisciplinary and multinational area. Several practical cases will be investigated and an introduction to coding will be provided.

 The number of participants is limited to a maximum of 25 people. Registration is open until May 31, 2025.

Course leaders

Dov GREENBAUM

Professor Dov Greenbaum teaches law at the Interdisciplinary Center Herzliya, a private university in Israel. He is also the Director of the Zvi Meitar Institute for Legal Implications of Emerging Technologies. Concurrently, he is also a researcher in the department of Molecular Biophysics and Biochemistry at Yale University. Prof. Greenbaum has degrees and post-doctoral fellowships from Yeshiva University, Yale University, University of California, Berkeley, ETH Zurich and Stanford University.

In addition to his academic affiliation and training, he is also an intellectual property attorney (California & USPTO), with experience in the fields of biopharmaceutical litigation, and Hi-Tech patent drafting and prosecution, including drafting in the fields of robotics, software, computer hardware and defense.

In addition to his lecturing abroad, Professor Greenbaum has also taught a number of courses at Singapore Management University.

Yann LECORPS

Yann Lecorps is Associate Professor at the University of Paris Panthéon Assas, research fellow at the Paris Research Center in Law and Economics (CRED).

His research focuses on the impact of the legal environment on the decisions of individuals or groups of individuals. He uses a variety of theoretical and empirical methods to conduct his research. His latest research projects include measuring the deterrent effect of the International Criminal Court (ICC) on civilian killings, using textual analysis methods to measure the use of digital evidence in international criminal law investigations, measuring the deterrent and crime-displacement effects of a French predictive policing algorithm.

In addition to his research, Yann Lecorps teaches several Law and Economics courses to both economics and law students.
